

Barbara Siciliano

Barbara Siciliano is retired from US federal service after a 29 year career with the Central Intelligence Agency, Directorate of Operations (DO) clandestine service. Upon her retirement she was awarded the Distinguished Career Intelligence Medal, a rare and coveted medal awarded only to highly accomplished Senior Intelligence Service (SIS) executive leaders. She served 12 years abroad supporting national security missions as well as in key leadership positions in Washington, D.C.. She is currently serving Idaho National Laboratory in a senior advisory strategic intelligence role.