

Brian W. Chesnovar is currently the manager for construction and procurement quality at INL. Brian has over thirty years of experience in the nuclear and commercial quality industry. These areas include procurement quality engineering, project quality engineering, construction quality, auditing, environmental quality assurance and quality control inspection. Brian has a bachelor's in industrial technology with a major in health and safety from University of Idaho.